

Stockholm, September 16, 2021
PRESS RELEASE

Hesus acquires Fleaty and continues its international deployment

*Photo of Filip Stamenkovic, Head of Hesus Nordics and Emmanuel Cazeneuve, CEO of Hesus
Photo by Julia Strandell at Vagel Studios.*

French Greentech company Hesus has acquired Fleaty, a leading innovator that digitizes and optimizes mass handling in the construction industry. It's a major operation on the construction and circular economy market. Hesus is already operating in France, United Kingdom, Germany, Poland, Switzerland and now Sweden.

In December 2020, Hesus raised ten million Swedish Kronor to invest in Fleaty's capital. Both companies have perfectly matching values and cultures, and after 9 months of cooperation resulting in an exceptional growth and offering great prospects for the future, Hesus has decided to acquire 100 percent of Fleaty's shares and the company will hence be renamed Hesus in January 2022.

Stockholm, September 16, 2021
PRESS RELEASE

The proceeds are to be reinvested in Hesus by closing date. Filip Stamenkovic becomes the new Head of Hesus Nordics and will lead the company's development in Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

Following a successful expansion in Sweden, Hesus is now firmly rooted on the Scandinavian market. Despite all the challenges of the pandemic, Hesus has been able to continue its exceptional growth and plans to be establish its first office in California, United States by 2022.

"This merge is a major step for Hesus development and for soil management on the European market. It will provide high-value services for carbon footprint avoidance and circular economy for construction sites in Europe. I am delighted to welcome Fleaty's talented teams who will join us in taking up the challenge to drastically reduce carbon in our sector" says Emmanuel Cazeneuve, CEO of Hesus.

"Hesus' services synergize very well with Fleaty. We offer a comprehensive solution which is unique on the market. Being part of Hesus, we aim to be the world's leading company in mass handling and transport services for the construction industry" says Filip Stamenkovic, CEO of Fleaty.

The two combined digital platforms and technologies will bring the best solutions for transparency and traceability of contaminated materials. This merger is an important milestone to set the scene for a better way of doing construction tomorrow.

For more information, please contact:

Matti Johansson, press contact Vagel Studios
+46 76 811 65 66
matti.johansson@vagelstudios.com

Anahit Akopian, press contact Hesus
+33 7 87 38 79 80
anahit.akopian@havas.com

About Hesus

Hesus is the Greentech partner of the construction industry, helping in the management and transport of wastes and excavated soils. By using Cloud computing and IoT, Hesus allows project owners to monitor the waste, from the site to the appropriate recycling center. The company's goal is to implement virtuous relexes in the industry and move it toward a circular economy.

Stockholm, September 16, 2021
PRESS RELEASE